

From: Ben Grimsbo
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 11/27/01 8:26pm
Subject: Too light of a settlement, not enough punishment

I think you guys went a little too easy on MS. They punishment should've been much harsher. I think the reason it wasn't is because MS bribed you guys. Thus far that's the only rumor that has any strong ground. I hope it's wrong though, I don't like the thought that my government can be bought during such an important case. You should've at least ordered them to completely revamp their Operating system based on their own ideas, not that of other companies. And you should've forced them to stop production of their internet explorer web browser application, which caused Netscape to go out of business. Once again, I really think you guys were too lenient.

--

"Humans are animals too. It is just a question of which one is the real predator." - Ben Grimsbo